Virtual Interprofessional Geriatric Case Competition

FALL 2023

What is it?

The Interprofessional Geriatric Case Competition provides an interprofessional learning opportunity for teams of undergraduate and graduate students from different disciplines to gain simulated experience in creating a care plan for a complex older patient with multiple chronic health conditions. Students will be placed in an interprofessional team supported by a faculty or community expert coach and work together over a month to create and present an innovative 25-minute case presentation.

What are we asking?

Faculty, please consider including this interprofessional activity as you plan Fall Semester classes.

You could offer optional credit or up to 12 clinical hours in your Fall course syllabus.

We ask you to encourage students to participate.

When is it held?

The competition will be in late September through early November 2023.
